Passions run high over Museum expansion plans

Ken Couper, the Chairman of the Waipu Museum is in the hot seat as passions run high over the future of the museum.

"If the object was to gain lots of different opinions then I think we can say the consultation went pretty well", said Ken of two information sessions held in the Celtic Barn on Saturday 27 and Sunday 28 October.

More than 130 people turned up to the sessions which museum manager Fiona Moir considered "an excellent turn out."

Architect Grant Harris of HB Architecture explained two different concept plans he had prepared for the museum expansion.

The first to extend the current building both at the front and the rear to incorporate more display and work space and to give street frontage to the museum shop and a possible museum café.

The second concept plan involves leaving the current building as is and purchasing of the soon to be vacated Waipu Hammer Hardware building, which would be redesigned with glazing along its northern wall to form a link into the Caledonian Park.

Ken explained to the Bream Bay News that the museum board had started off with five options:

- To do nothing,
- To extend to the north into the precinct where a number of historical buildings have been collected,
- To extend the museum out the back only

Sensational beach views. Social people will love it

If you are a social person, you will love the spaces at this house.

After 20 years of enjoying this amazing property, the vendors have called time. This could be your lucky day, as properties like this just don't come to market very often at Langs Beach.

Architecturally designed to maximise light, sun and the extraordinary grand stand position which offers views along the beach and out over the bay. Mesmerizing to watch the swell form out in the bay and roll to shore.

Visitors from around the world walking along our beach

It's Te Araroa season when hikers with packs on their backs and walking poles can be seen heading southwards along the beach or up Cullen Rd.

There are an estimated 1500 people making the journey this year, most of them starting from Cape Reinga in October, November or early December and taking around three weeks to reach Bream Bay.

A fortnight ago I joined my husband Geoff on the trail for two days, walking from Pataua South to McLeods Bay around the Taiharuru estuary, up Kauri Mountain, along Ocean Beach and over Bream Head. It wasn't easy. At the end of day one I was exhausted enough to sleep soundly on my thin foam rubber bed roll.

There is something wonderfully liberating about the self-reliance of hiking. Everything we needed: food, fuel, cooker, water, sleeping bag, and tent, warm clothing was in our backpacks. Modern technology helps a lot of course. Maps, GPS location information, elevation readings, weather forecasts, advice about the best camp sites, photo and video cameras, books to read, information to help us identify birds and plants we come across and the ability to let friends and family know we are still alive all contained in our 212 gram cell phones.

Geoff is using his phone for regular Facebook updates and has gathered quite a following. People seem to enjoy watching someone else sloshing through mud, falling face flat in a river or plodding up numerous steep hillsides.

Since then we have had a succession of Te Araroa walkers come and stay at our home for a night. They vary widely in age, nationality, occupation and personality. One of Geoff's trail buddies is Steve, dad and two children aged nine and six, is making the journey. When I heard about this I thought the parents must be crazy. How could anyone expect a six-year-old to walk 3,000 kilometres? I met this group on the summit of Mt Lion and they seem to be making good progress. The two children are not carrying anything but the parents have quite large backpacks. I believe there is a tepee style tent they all sleep under in the dad's pack. As they paused to talk to us in a sunlit clearing the mum handed the two kids a bottle of water to drink from and the dad pulled hats over both the children's heads. What an adventure they are on!

Geoff is back on the trail now but it's been fun. TA walkers, who have been living on noodles and dehydrated food for three weeks are very appreciative people to cook for. They all took photographs of the breakfasts I made them with tomatoes, avocados, asparagus bacon and free-range eggs.

Let's welcome these travellers as they pass through our district. If you see one in Waipu or Ruakaka ask about where they are from and how the journey has been so far. Give them some friendly local advice. If you have the time and enjoy meeting new people invite them home for a meal. We could build a reputation amongst Te Araroa hikers as the most welcoming place in New Zealand.

There's a lot of excitement about the economic benefit the SailGP boats being tested on Bream Bay will bring in the shoulder season, just before the busy summer, for our local hospitality industry and, hopefully, this is happening. However, I think these TA walkers, must be bringing an equal amount of value. What is more, the benefits from these visitors are likely to be spread more evenly around our community. They stay at local camping grounds and homestays; they restock their supplies at our stores, buy takeaways and call in to our cafés. For the most part, they are interesting, self-reliant individuals and it is enjoyable to meet and talk to them. So let's make the most of these months when we have these adventurers from all around the world walking along our beach and through our towns..

Waipu Pharmacy replacement building arrives in the early hours

The Waipu Pharmacy replacement building is gingerly backed into position behind Leith's Hairdressing Salon

It was an early start for Louise and Paul Wickham of The Centre Waipu Ltd. on Monday morning 29 October when they were on hand to see the arrival of the relocated house the company has purchased for the Waipu Pharmacy. Electricity lines needed to be disconnected for the operation and traffic was diverted away from the main street as the house carrier gingerly backed the trailer with the house on board through a narrow gap between the Magic Tasty Takeaway and the building housing the hairdresser and osteopath.

The Centre Waipu Ltd., with directors Louise and Paul as well as Angela and Rick Stolwerk have worked with some urgency to get a building on site to meet stringent Ministry of Health security requirements for pharmacies. Since the fire in the main street of the town early on Sunday morning 30 October, Brenda Wells, the Waipu pharmacist, has been travelling on a daily basis to Russell to make up prescriptions and then delivering them around Waipu in the evenings.

Louise said it is hoped the pharmacy will be able to open in its new premises by the end of this month and that this is possible because the various companies involved in the relocation and in setting up the new building have given priority to the project. Meanwhile it has been all go in the new Waipu café deli building. Jo Spring the business owner had hoped to re-open in the little cottage over the road from the burnt out building on Friday 2 November but had a hold up with the electricity connection. She told the Bream Bay News on Monday the café would be re-opening in one form or another the following day. She said Councillor Phil Halse had been "just amazing" in helping to negotiate the way through the various Whangarei District Council regulations and local tradesmen had been very supportive, negotiating time off from current jobs to fit out the new café space.

Will the Waipu ATM be replaced?

Asked whether the ATM destroyed in the Waipu fire of 30 September would be replaced, Emma Mellow a media contact person for ANZ replied, "We're working with local businesses to find a new site, however, for a new ATM to be installed it must meet our accessibility, safety and security requirements. We apologise for any inconvenience while we explore options for the Waipu community."

Asked if the cash in the ATM had been destroyed in the fire Ms Mellow said it had been and where possible it had been counted and sent back to the Reserve Bank to be destroyed.

The Centre Waipu Ltd., along with Brenda and Jacqui from Waipu Pharmacy, would like to thank the following businesses who helped to get the new chemist building relocated at 6 The Centre as quickly as possible

New Educare Centre will cater for 85 children

The new purpose built educare centre in Ruakaka will be licensed to cater for 85 children. The current centre, alongside the Ruakaka Recreation Centre, is licensed for 50 and is running at capacity.

Alan Lints, Educare director said, "Our aim is to cater for current Bream Bay families as well as newcomers to the area. We are well staffed in preparation for the opening with staff and tamariki "overseeing" the project from across the road. "Guyco (the company building the new centre) is on track to be finished in January. We aim to be licensed and ready to relocate at the end of January".

More dust problems for Sea Dune Place residents

When strong gusts of wind on Thursday 1 November sent clouds of black dust over the properties in Sea Dune Place and Dune Lake Place from John Keith's 80-lot subdivision alongside, residents contacted the Northland Regional Council.

NRC compliance officer Colin Dall said Mr. Keith had explained he has a water truck, which was at another of his projects last Thursday but would return to the Tamure Rd. subdivision when work resumed there.

The residents say the dust has coated their houses and gardens and infiltrated their homes and is causing some of them health problems.

Last summer they also experienced dust problems from the subdivision, sometimes unable to open windows on the southern side of their houses for months on end during the hottest months.

Mark Tierney needs a ride up to the Paper Mill in Whangarei each Monday morning. Mark is a 57-year-old very gentle man with Downs Syndrome. He enjoys his work at the mill and stays up in Whangarei in respite care for three nights and then catches a bus back to Waipu on Thursday.

In the New Year the woman he currently gets a ride with is changing her work hours so, Mark's mum Trish is looking for someone else to help out. He needs to be at his Paper Mill job around 9ish but can be dropped off a bit earlier as there will be people around take care of him there.

Infringement notices for people who dump rubbish in Te One St. pine forest

The Whangarei District Council will be serving infringement notices on two people whose mail was discovered amongst piles of rubbish dumped in the pine forest behind Te One Place, Ruakaka.

Rubbish dumping in this forest is a frequent occurrence and expensive for the caretakers of this Treaty Settlement land to deal with.

The latest two trailer loads of refuse included: plastic bottles, old carpet, tyres, broken glass and parts from wrecked vehicles.

The broken glass, in particular, presented a hazard for local people who walk and exercise their dogs in the forest.

Grant Alsop, the Whangarei District Council's Waste and Drainage field officer said even though the land the rubbish was dumped on does not belong to the Council, he could still issue infringement notices for rubbishing dumping there.

Rubbish dumped in the Te One St. pine forest.

Who wants to be a volunteer freedom camping ambassador?

Is there anyone in Ruakaka who would like to be "a volunteer responsible freedom camping ambassador" this summer?

The Whangarei District Council has come up with a plan to have volunteer ambassadors at each of the district's ten most popular freedom camping spots with Ruakaka beach being first on the list.

Whangarei Mayor Sheryl Mai said, "The rise in freedom camper numbers has brought increased social and economic benefit to the district, but also pressure on existing infrastructure and growing numbers of complaints from resident."

"This is a nation-wide issue, with central government in August providing funding to 28 New Zealand councils, Whangarei included, to upgrade camping site infrastructure and implement a responsible freedom camping education programme."

The aim is to have several ambassadors at each site to rotate the daily tasks of greeting campers, ensuring they know the rules, recording data and reporting any problems to Council and its enforcement agency, Armourguard.

Mayour Mai said, "Ambassadors will have no enforcement responsibilities but will educate campers in a friendly manner about the standards of behaviour expected of them."

Successful ambassador applicants will receive full training, ongoing Council support throughout the Programme operating period of 20 December 2018 to 10 February 2019, and a koha for expenses.

To apply to become an ambassador go to Council's website at www.wdc.govt.nz/ResponsibleFreedomCamping. Responsible Freedom Camping Ambassador application forms are also available from Council's Customer Service Centre at Forum North in Rust Ave, or by contacting WDC Responsible Freedom Camping Co-ordinator, Sue Halliwell, on (09) 470 3196 or email

Susan.Halliwell@wdc.govt.nz.

Applications close at 4pm on Friday 9 November with successful candidates advised by 4pm on Friday 16 November. Ambassadors must be able to attend one of three Responsible Freedom Camping evening ambassador training sessions on 27, 28 or 29 November at Forum North.

Understanding Allergies

An allergy is when your body's immune system reacts to normally harmless substances that it sees as harmful. The allergy-causing substances are called allergens.

What causes Allergies?

Many substances can cause an allergic reaction, but some of the most common are:

- pollen
- mould
- animal hair
- dust and dust mites
- latex
- medicines
- insect stings
- foods

Are there different kinds of Allergic reactions?

Different allergens will cause different kinds of allergic reactions. The most common allergic conditions are hayfever, asthma and skin problems (e.g. eczema, rashes, hives).

- Airborne allergens such as mould, dust, pollen, grasses and weeds can cause hayfever.
- Pollens, moulds and house dust mites can trigger asthma attacks.
- Skin reactions can be caused by contact with an allergen (like latex or certain metals), by insect bites or stings, or by eating food or taking medicine you are allergic to.
- Common foods that may cause allergies are shellfish, eggs and nuts.

What is Anaphylaxis?

Anaphylaxis is the most severe form of allergic reaction, often affecting several parts of the body.

Call 111 straight away if you or a family member has an allergic reaction with any of these symptoms:

- trouble breathing, including wheezing
- swelling of the lips or tongue
- pale, cool, damp skin
- drowsiness, confusion or loss of consciousness

Symptoms typically occur within 30 minutes of exposure, often within five minutes, and usually develop rapidly.

Insect stings, drugs such as penicillin, and certain foods are some of the more common causes of severe allergic reactions.

Ask your Pharmacist about auto adrenaline injectors that can be carried with you in case of emergency.

What are Allergy symptoms?

The symptoms of an allergic reaction depend on the type and severity of the reaction.

Common symptoms include:

- sneezing
- watery and/or swollen eyes
- stuffy or runny nose
- itching
- a rash or hives (raised red itchy areas on the skin)
- stomach cramps
- diarrhoea

A fast pulse and nausea and/or vomiting are less common reactions.

How are Allergies treated?

The best management for allergies is to avoid the allergen, however this is not always possible. For mild symptoms your Pharmacist is able to recommend treatment options including antihistamines, decongestants or corticosteroid nasal sprays.

Antihistamines – these are available as liquids, tablets or nasal sprays. These prevent histamine release and relieve sneezing, itching and help dry up a runny nose.

Decongestant nasal sprays and tablets – these unblock the nose and relieve nasal congestion. They should only be used occasionally and never for more than 3 days at a time.

Corticosteroid nasal sprays – these reduce the inflammation in the lining of the nose and work better when used as a preventative, i.e. taken before symptoms develop. They can be used continuously for weeks or months.

For more severe symptoms your Pharmacist will refer you to your Doctor.

Let's give the dunes over to our youth

As a silly old fart may I add to the debate about the desecration of the Uretiti dunes by our youth. Lets give them the dunes.

Let them ride there; a decade's abuse cannot match the damage of an overnight storm. Let them catch fish there and smoke them over a driftwood fire. Let them drink beer there and spell their names in piddle on the dry sand, (with too many full stops).

Let them take their sweethearts there, and get their fumbling hands slapped and boast they got further.

Let them skinny dip there, with their acned cheeks exposed to the sun.

Let them preen and prance like peacocks there while we snigger at their lack of feathers. Let us see them through their mothers' eyes, such awkward clumsy blossoms.

Just keep them from warmongers and their filthy foreign killing fields and their plasticine truths so expertly shaped to fit their satanic purpose.

Let them grow old like too many before them will never grow old. They are our treasure.

Volunteer beach ambassadors needed

The Beach Ambassador Programme, which aims to keep people safe on the beach over summer will be running again this year.

"We have the funding and Cervus equipment have offered us the Gator again", said Constable Martin Geddes who has won national recognition as a finalist at the Police Problem Oriented Policing Awards for this initiative.

He said Brent Cooper, who looks after the Gator and is its main operator, is on board again after breaking his leg last year but Lucy Goffin is away overseas so a new coordinator is needed.

Anyone interested in helping either as a volunteer ambassador driving the Gator up the beach or as coordinator please phone the Police non-emergency line (the Waipu Police Station number 432 4030 will take you there) and leave a message for Constable Martin Geddes.

Passions run high over Museum expansion plans

The Waipu Museum

To get away from Ken described as “small town personality clashes” the museum board engaged the consultant Sally Manuireva. She eliminated three of the options but said she needed to do more investigation of the two remaining and to this end, held the weekend public consultation exercise.

Asked about what would happen next, Ken said the board would be waiting the consultant’s recommendation.

“Sally will be taking the feedback on board. This in one of the last steps in the process before she can report back.”

At the Sunday information session when a member of the audience asked if there could be more time for people to get their feedback in, Ken had replied that this would be left up to Ms. Manuireva.

“No disrespect to Sally but it is costing us quite a lot for her services so I think we should leave her to do the job.”

Asked by the Bream Bay News how much the consultation fee is Ken said he felt this was personal information to Ms. Manuireva.

“I find her to be very professional and I support the work she has done.”

He said he wouldn’t employ a farm consultant and then ignore the advice.

Comments made at Sunday’s consultation session included:

- The current stone building was built by an earlier generation of descendants of the Nova Scotian migration to house their memories and treasures. Their efforts should be respected and the collection should remain in this building.

- A glass shop front (Option One) would detract from the attractive appearance of the stone building.

- The collection should not be secondary to the shop and café.

- There was talk of the Waipu Museum becoming a gateway to Northland museum, which didn’t sit well with some. Would the enlarged museum space mean the museum would need to tell “other people’s histories?”

- Why not develop the museum to the North, making use of the buildings and land behind and the work volunteers have done on the collection of historic buildings there. Why isn’t this option included?

Museum Chairman Ken Couper assured those at the Sunday afternoon gathering that the status of the Waipu Nova Scotian migration would not disappear under his watch. He said the Nova Scotian story is central to the identity of Waipu and would remain so.

The museum currently receives generous funding from the Whangarei District Council but this may not always be the case and if possible it would like to become more self sufficient – hence the need to give the museum shop some street frontage and the proposal for a café.

Ken told the Bream Bay News there is opposition from some to inclusion of the story of pre European Maori inhabitation of Waipu in the museum but he feels that this content will serve to enrich the Nova Scotian story.

“Ideally we will end up with three exhibition spaces, one for the Nova Scotian collection, one for the Maori collection and a third for changing exhibitions, which will bring local people back to the museum.”

He said, while it needs to look after its Nova Scotian collection for the descendants of the migration, the museum also needs to consider Waipu’s present day community, which it depends on for support for its various activities such as the Pageant and the Art n Tartan wearable art show.

Ken said a room to host visiting school children which could also be used as a community room would be useful and more space and better IT equipment for museum volunteers, staff and genealogists to work in is needed.

He said he was aware that it would be impossible to please everyone.

“I suspect that no-one will get exactly what they want and we are all going to have to compromise.”

Police Report

Constable Martin Geddes beach safety project, which has volunteers patrolling Bream Bay over summer to make sure people are safe on the beach and in the water has gained national recognition as one of six finalists at the Problem Oriented Policing Awards held in Wellington last month.

Constable Martin Geddes

Sergeant Simon Craig Officer in Command at the Bream Bay Police Station said for Constable Geddes project to be named as a finalist was "very impressive" as it relied on one police officer, Bream Bay surf life-saving clubs and a group of around six volunteers.

By contrast the winning entry an initiative to improve the relationship between Police and the Tuhoe people involved 300 police officers, (more than the whole police force of Northland) and including senior ranked police as well as Tuhoe leaders.

Constable Geddes started the beach safety patrol after witnessing the distress of family and friends when a young Chinese man drowned at Uretiti on Christmas Day 2014.

All calls go through to a call centre but the operator will divert the call to Sergeant Craig's cellphone if he on duty or leave him a message, which he will reply to if he is not.

Art n Tartan Up Close exhibition

"We'd love to see the costumes up close," is a remark often heard after the Art'nTartan Wearable Art contest and show held in Waipu in July.

If you would like to get a good look at the details of the 2018 garments and learn how they were constructed there will be chance to do just that in November when an exhibition of costumes will be held in the Celtic Barn.

Around twenty of the artworks will be on display including the supreme winner "Me and My Shadow" by local artist Carole Heberd. Among others will be

"Ravioli Rose" created by Alarnya Ashby together with Robyn Coutts' "Kaitiaki" - all great favourites with the audience. There will also be the chance for designers to pick up an entry form for next year, which includes details of the new categories for 2019. Members of the organising team, including new Production Manager, Claire Drake, will be there to chat and answer any queries you may have.

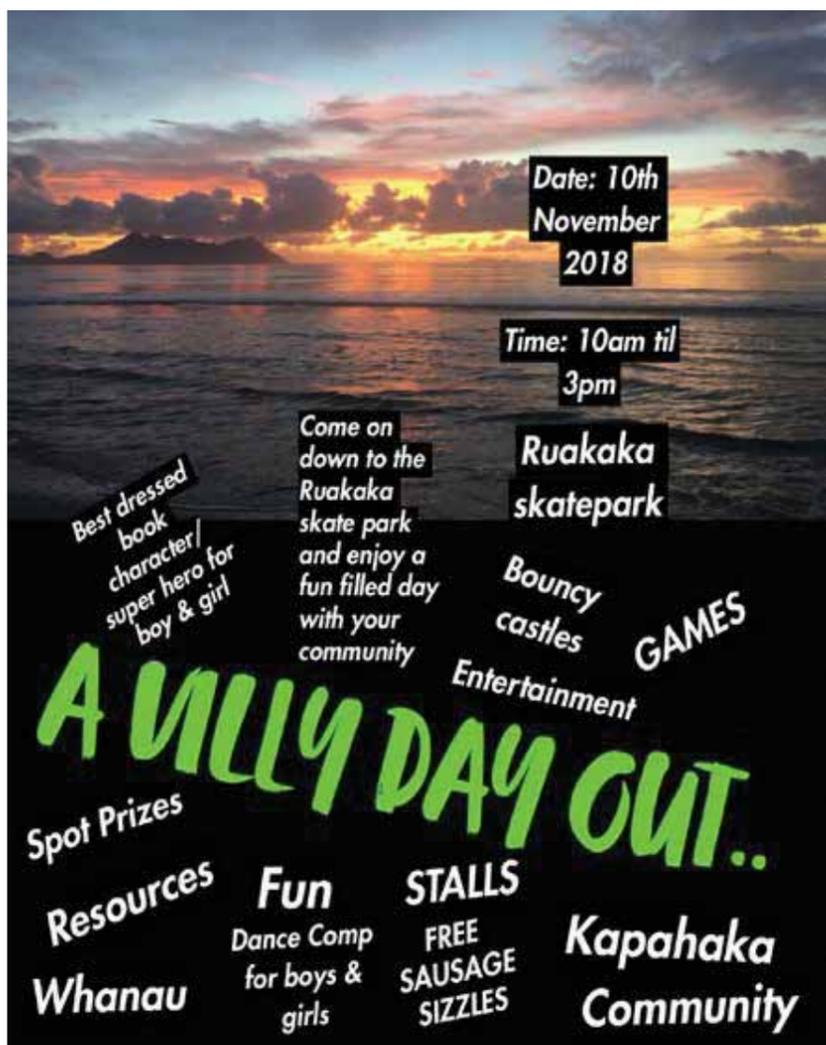

The exhibition will run from 10am to 2pm on 10 and 11 November. En-try will be by gold coin.

Helen's Head Shave

Fifteen years ago Waipu's Helen McGregor lost her life after a three year battle with breast cancer. This year Helen's daughters and friends are holding a head shave to commemorate her life and to help other women and families affected by breast cancer. All money raised will be donated to the NZ Breast Cancer Foundation and hair to the Locks of Love charity.

McGregor was diagnosed in 1999 when youngest daughter Sian was just a baby, but doctors delayed her mastectomy for three months. By this time the tumour had grown from the size of a marble to the size of a golf ball and had also spread to her lymph nodes. When she finally had the operation, she contracted a flesh-eating disease that resulted in more breast having to be removed. She also endured several rounds of chemotherapy over the three years until she passed in June 2003, the day before her 37th birthday.

Many people in the community were affected by her death due to her involvement in the Bream Bay area. She owned the Bream Bay News, which she had to sell upon becoming sick. The bagpiping community was also impacted by her passing, and now honour her with the Helen McGregor Memorial trophy for which pipers from around the world compete annually in Waipu on New Year's Eve. At the time of her passing, her three daughters were aged; 14, 11, and 4, with two of them enrolled at the local high school. They also attended highland dancing, and ballet groups in the area.

Bruce Paton dyed his hair pink in support of the head shave event. The dye he used was supposed to have been temporary but has lasted longer than he anticipated.

Donations can be made through the Helen's Head Shave givealittle page which you can also access via the Helen's Head Shave facebook page. The head shave will be on 24 November at the Waipu Caledonian Hall, from 1pm..
